

Why Your Startup Needs an Accountant

“Behind every good company is a great accountant.” Piyush Maru

We believe professional services for a business should be seen as an investment not an expense. An Accountant’s fees are an insurance policy against making potentially disastrous mistakes. Accountants are an invaluable resource to help guide your business to its greatest heights.

The most salient argument for hiring an Accountant includes choosing the right business structure; creating a Marketing and Business Plan; planning, controlling and monitoring your cash flow; implementing the best accounting system for your business and minimizing your tax bill.

Choosing the Right Business Structure

Accountants are vital in guiding you in making the best choice possible for your business structure. There are many tax and legal implications to take into consideration.

You want to do what is in your best interest given your specific circumstances at the time. Your business structure may change in the future. For example, knowing when to incorporate and what type of entity to use is extremely important. A mistake here can be devastating.

Creating a Marketing and Business Plan

Contrary to some beliefs, creating a comprehensive Marketing Plan should come before the business plan. The Marketing Plan will tell you the feasibility of the business before you start investing time and money into it. If the business cannot substantiate the required investment based on sales and profitability, it is not a sustainable business.

Assuming your Marketing Plan provides an adequate rationale for launching your company, the business plan will create the blueprint on how to build it. You must have the tools in place to prove your business concept.

Planning, Controlling and Monitoring Your Cash Flow

The adage “Cash is King” could not be more appropriate in the starting stage of your business. You must know how much cash you will need to reach profitability. An Accountant is critical for this process. Not only can an Accountant help you project your cash needs, he or she can also keep you focused on generating the cash you will need to stay in business.

Implementing the Best Accounting System for Your Business

Choosing the right accounting system from the beginning can make or break your business. Your

Accountant can advise you on the most effective accounting system given your requirements from the start not to mention avoiding the financial impacts of making costly mistakes.

Advice on your accounting system can save you hours of having to redo reports based on inaccurate information. Having systems and processes in place to generate timely and accurate reports is paramount for making the right decisions the first time.

Minimizing Your Tax Bill

Most Accountants can easily pay for their services many times over just in the amount they save your business in taxes you are not required to pay. Talk about Cash Flow, this is the best way we know to increase the amount of money you need to reinvest in your business.

Outsourcing your accounting work allows you to pay for only the services you need when you require them. This is a huge advantage in growing your business because your needs will change based on where your business is in its lifecycle.

The following tasks are required depending on the stage of your business planning process.
